TIME MAPPING

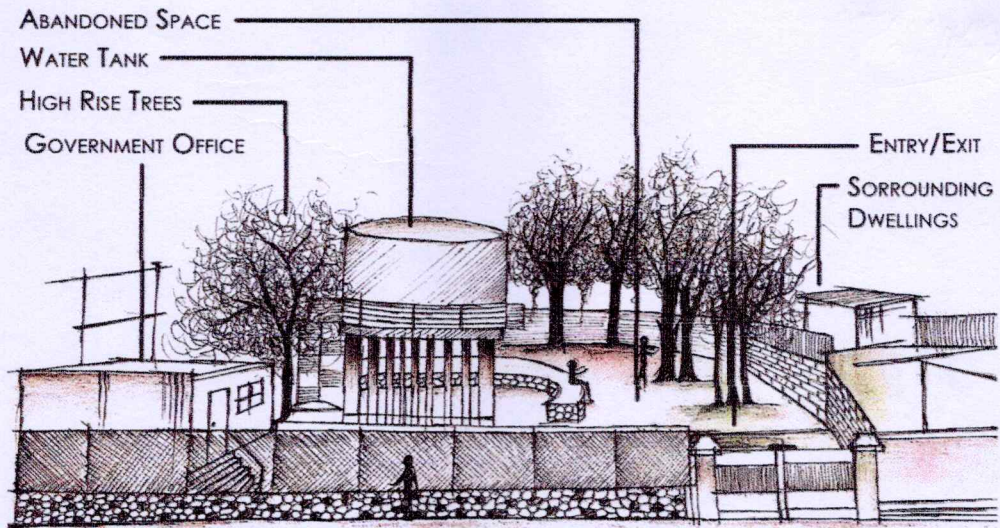

BRIEF INTERPRETATION

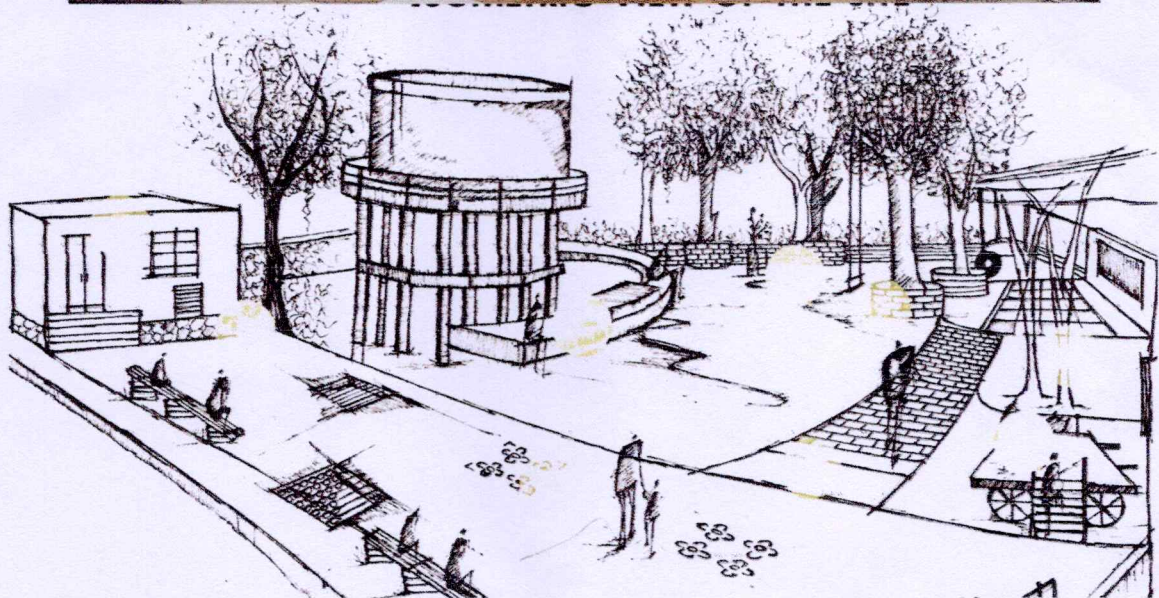

Amity

Time is fluid, constantly evolving, changing every constant, distorting the past to form an unrecognisable future. Amidst this turmoil are we, as humans, slowly submitting to the chaos around us, losing sight of who we are, not just as individuals but as a whole people. Today we are our history forgotten, our culture faded, our traditions moribund. Evolution, transformation and adaption succeeds only under the reconsideration of what one used to be, and thus enable a direct quantification of progress. Thus enable an attempt to recover the bygone, we retrace our footsteps, go back to our roots and find who we are so as to know. so we reverse the clock, and find what we've lost: the indistinguishable satisfaction behind simplicity

ANGANWADI	HAND CART SLIDE	SEATING	PAINTING FEATURES	ABACUS
a space was created for the local anganwadi, that was preciously held under a tree. we provided them with an overhead covering, a black board and a proper platform for the children the atmosphere thus created was much bigger than what it had previously been and enable the students to gain a better aducation	a disused handcart was found on site, and modified into a slide for the amusement of the children, who were thrilled to see the novelty, squabbling for turns to use the slide, this installation was amongst the most successful modifications made on the site	the space was provided with multiple kinds of seating, one of these was curved seating suiting the human anthropometry of both, a child and an adult. alternatively another kind of seating was created by oiling three tires and attaching them with bamboo rafts	one of our major concerns was making the space user friendly and creating a bright and vibrant environment. these motives were achieved by painting several surfaces using invigorating colours, such as an exposed brick wall. an activity was conducted to palm print the columns of the water tank to enhance community interaction	to cover up the pre-existing open cavity, we inserted a metal grill to safeguard the area. going a step further, we bored holes into a number of balls to create an abacus like plaything for the children to play with, leading another interactive intervention to our site
